

Sue

Sue has been a big supporter and assistant in ASNR's Aging and Dementia Simulation program since she began volunteering 4 years ago. In this program, Sue helps teach caregivers, students, and professionals what life might be like for those living with Alzheimer's. Sue loves to hear participants' thoughts and feelings after the simulation.

Aging and Dementia is not the only area Sue lends a helping hand either. You can also find her helping at our Brain Wave Café, REBEL group and Power of Music.

Over the years, Sue has enjoyed seeing how our clients light up in our social programs and listening to their stories and memories. Being able to make a client smile is something Sue always strives for when interacting with our clients.

When it comes to volunteering, Sue believes volunteers give so much to the clients and community we serve. "With the Alzheimer Society, you are giving so much to the senior community: offering social activities, having fun, and helping our clients recall memories. Volunteering for me has been beneficial for these reasons, plus the joy I see on a client's face when they participate in our social activities."

Thank you so much for everything you do, Sue!
