On This Date

1927 – Mae West was found guilty of violating morals charges relating to her Broadway play Sex. When the judge asked if she was trying to show contempt for the court, she answered, “On the contrary, Your Honor, I was doing my best to conceal it.”

1934 – Five-year-old Shirley Temple made her debut in the movie Stand Up and Cheer! The film was about efforts undertaken during the Great Depression to boost the morale of the country.

1948 – Gérard Côté, from rural Saint-Barnabé, Quebec, won his fourth Boston Marathon. He went on to set a world record on snowshoes 10 years later.

Run Canada

The most recent Canadians to win the Boston Marathon are Jerome Drayton in 1977 (men’s), Jacqueline Gareau in 1980 (women’s), and Joshua Cassidy in 2012 (men’s wheelchair).

Quote of the Day

“All of life’s experiences, bad and good, make you who you are. Erasing any of life’s experiences would be a great mistake.”

~ Luis Miguel

Happy Birthday!

Luis Miguel, born in 1970, is a highly successful Mexican singer often referred to as “El Sol de México” (the Sun of Mexico).

Miguel found fame with his versatile voice and mastery of various music genres, including pop, bolero, and mariachi.

Today is National Garlic Day. Were you aware that the Egyptians revered garlic as a deity? Garlic was believed to bestow strength upon Greek athletes and warriors, protect against the evil eye, and even repel vampires!

Eye in the Sky

There is an awful lot of junk in space, from satellites to the pieces left over from satellites that have been demolished in collisions with other space junk. Some of the things we have launched into space are pretty strange. Consider the Tesla roadster that hitched a ride on a SpaceX rocket. SpaceX also launched a solid-gold jar in the shape of NASA's first African American astronaut, Robert Henry Lawrence Jr. A company called RocketLab even launched a giant disco ball into space, calling the reflective orb the "Humanity Star."

Punny Business

I accidentally handed my wife a glue stick instead of Chapstick. She still isn't talking to me.
