

Title of Study: Raising the Curtain

Location: Canada-wide

Study Description:

Raising the Curtain is a research partnership between health care, the arts, and education. People living with dementia play an important role in the project. We use creative engagement workshops to learn about dementia, create art, and engage in dementia advocacy.

What Will Happen During the Study?

Currently, we are recruiting Peer Advocates who are interested in learning more about this work. Peer Advocates will be part of the team and will work closely with the other team members to plan, discuss, and participate in project activities between August 2021 and June 2022.

Eligibility: Who Can Participate?

You are eligible to participate in this study if you:

- Identify as living with early-stage dementia
- Are interested in issues related to dementia, such as stigma, inclusion, autonomy
- Are interested in the creative arts, research, and dementia advocacy
- Are willing to share experiences of living with dementia
- Feel comfortable working on a computer for meetings, activities, and communication (we can provide support with helping you get connected)
- Are able to attend meetings on Zoom
- Reside in Canada

Recruitment Start Date: June 1, 2021

Recruitment End Date: August 31, 2021
