A Message from the Board President and CEO

“Nothing about us, without us.”

This past year focused on engaging people with dementia in more meaningful ways, amplifying their voices so that we better understand their perspective, and creating communities that are welcoming and support them to live well with dementia.

To honour their right to be involved and engaged in the Alzheimer Society, we developed a Leadership Group for People with Dementia. Through this group we engaged people with dementia during our January Alzheimer Awareness Campaign – Let me help you understand.

Participants from the group shared their perspectives on what it’s like to live with a diagnosis of dementia, in hopes of helping to reduce stigma and create awareness.

To involve them and to help them remain valued in communities we continued our Dementia Friendly Communities initiative to create communities throughout Saskatchewan that are welcoming to people with dementia, support them to live well, and engage them meaningfully in everyday life.

Another major undertaking by the

Ian Rea
Board President

Society and the Board this past year was the development and the adoption of a three year strategic plan to help guide the organization and provide focus for the Board when it comes to measuring our collective success.

Our adopted plan (summarized on the next page) outlines four strategic pillars we believe will enhance our ability to help people to live well with dementia while we pursue our vision of a world without Alzheimer’s disease and related disorders.

Underpinning these strategic pillars is the foundational work of generating the necessary revenue and resources and maintaining an effective and efficient organization.

This year’s annual report is based on our four strategic pillars and their outcomes.

Another highlight of the year was the announcement of Canada becoming the 30th country to launch a national dementia strategy.

We look forward to working with people with dementia, family caregivers and our colleagues across the country in developing the strategy so that Canadians with dementia can have the best quality of life.

Living Well with Dementia

Access Diagnosis Empowerment

Programs & Services

Residents of Saskatchewan affected by dementia have timely access to support and programs that empower them to live well with dementia.

Awareness

Residents of Saskatchewan participate in prevention strategies, seek an early diagnosis and turn to the Alzheimer Society for information about dementia.

Research

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan is committed to funding research that is focused on finding a cause and a cure and improving the quality of life for people currently living with dementia.

Advocacy

Dementia is recognized and supported as a health care priority in Saskatchewan.

Organizational Effectiveness and Efficiency

Revenue Development

Our ultimate vision is a “world without Alzheimer’s disease and related disorders.” Research is a strategic priority that is essential in achieving our vision.

We are also committed to helping people to live well with dementia, this promise is supported through our strategic priorities of: programs and services, awareness, advocacy and research.

Foundational to all our success is our commitment to organizational effectiveness and efficiency.

None of our work is possible without the support of donors, sponsors and fundraising that generates the necessary revenue to fulfill our mission and vision.

People who connect with the Alzheimer Society have a far better experience than those who don't.

Vision

Our vision is a world without Alzheimer’s disease and related disorders.

Mission

To alleviate the personal and social consequences of Alzheimer’s disease and related disorders and to promote the search for a cause and a cure.

Programs and Services

Our programs and services staff are dedicated to delivering the best possible experience to the clients of the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan.

We try to ensure that our programs and services cover the continuum of the disease. From client calls to support groups to province wide Telehealth presentations, the Alzheimer Society is working hard to ensure that people who connect with us are supported by the information and services they need to live well with dementia.

Our efforts are focused on ensuring that residents from all areas of the province have access to the programs and services offered by the Alzheimer Society.

First Link

Our First Link™ program and our First Link Coordinators are continuing to make a positive impact on the lives of people affected by dementia.

This past year the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan served 23% more clients than the year before.

Our Learning Series, support groups and one on one client services all provide information, guidance and support to those affected by dementia at no cost.

A recent survey of our clients showed that 88% were very satisfied with the service they received and 93% of those served would recommend the Alzheimer Society to a friend or family member.

Strategic Pillar

Residents of Saskatchewan affected by dementia have timely access to support and programs that empower them to live well with dementia.

Our Resource Centres are located in Regina, Saskatoon, North Battleford, Prince Albert, Swift Current and Weyburn.

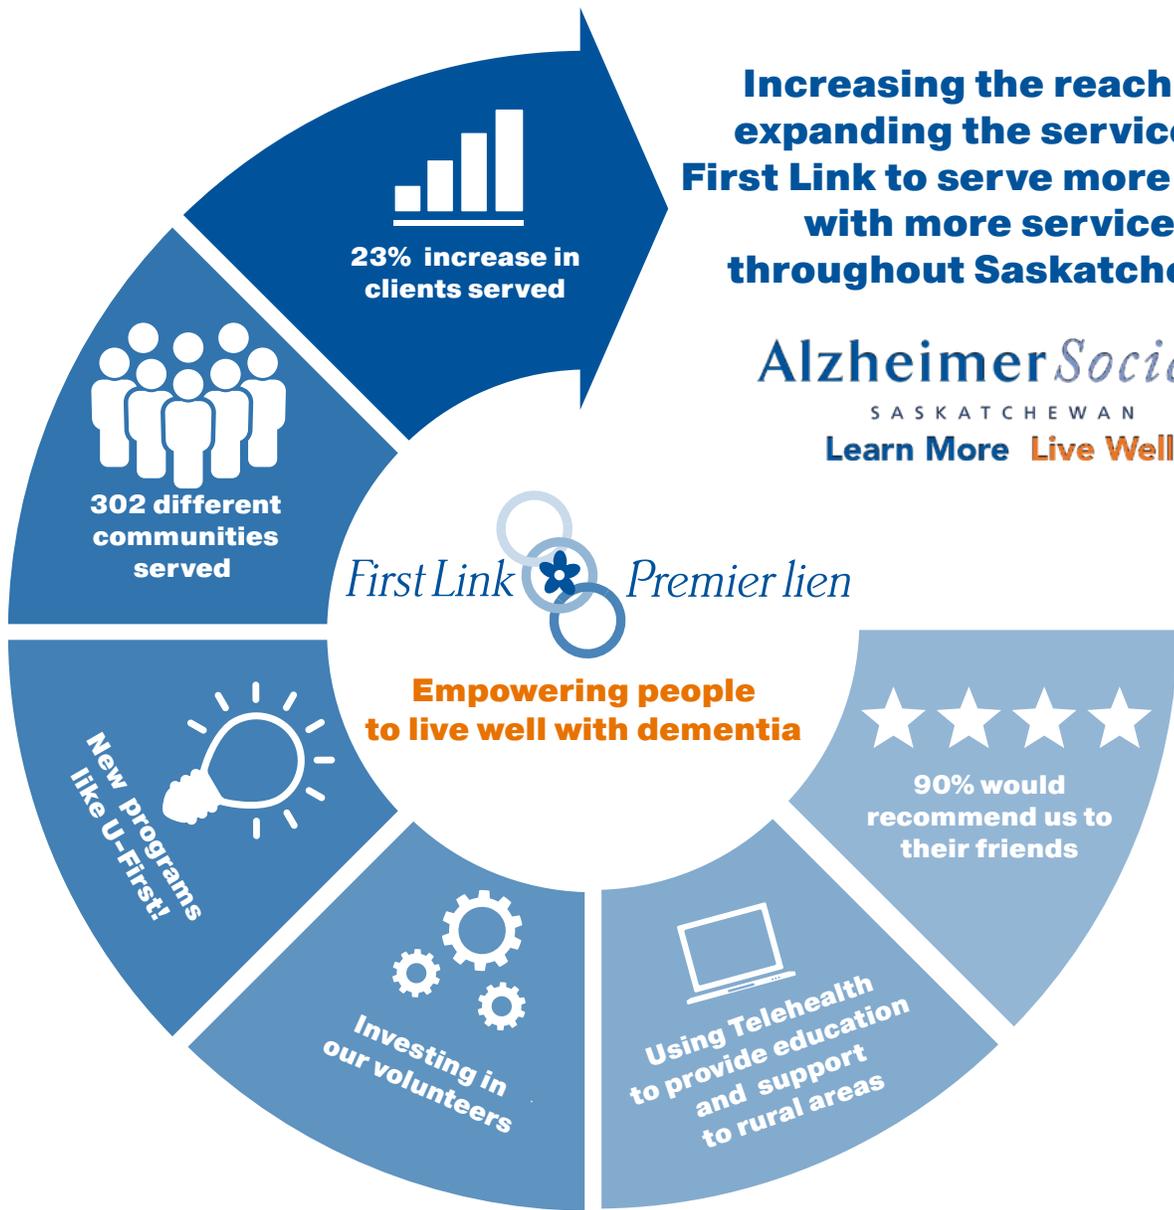

Beyond serving these centres and their surrounding areas, the Regina office provides services to people throughout the province without access to a local Alzheimer Society Resource Centre.

By leveraging the province's Telehealth system and other technologies we served 302 different communities last year.

We continue to offer 30 different support groups across the province with the help of trained volunteers.

Increasing the reach and expanding the services of First Link to serve more clients with more services throughout Saskatchewan

U-First!™

U-First! is training specifically designed for people working in community care, acute care, and long-term care. We introduced the program this past year and have received excellent feedback from participants.

The overall vision is to provide every member of the care team with consistent education on the core competencies and best practice relating to their role in providing care and services to a person affected by dementia.

Minds in Motion™

Minds in Motion (MIM) is a social and recreational program for people in the early stages of dementia and a care partner. MIM's goal is to improve the physical fitness, social and emotional connectedness for not only the person living with dementia but their care partner.

The program also hopes to achieve a higher level of connection with the community where people with dementia and their care partners feel supported and empowered to live well with dementia.

The program was expanded to include four communities in 2017/18: Regina; Saskatoon; Prince Albert; and Swift Current.

Of the 153 individuals who attended MIM, 87 of them (57%) were new Alzheimer Society clients.

Since the inception of MIM with the Saskatoon pilot in 2015, 65 out of 238 individuals have attended more than one MIM session.

New Support Groups

To meet the needs of our clients, we have offered a number of new types of support groups this year including:

- a second spousal Frontotemporal Dementia Support Group (FTDSG) delivered via Telehealth.
- a telephone support group for individuals not having a support group near the community in which they live;
- an Early Stage Support Group via Telehealth in the Cypress Resource Centre region which began in May and has three participants from three different communities in the area;
- a Young Onset Caregiver Support Group in Saskatoon, with the members being caregivers for a person with dementia diagnosed under the age of 65, all working full-time and having several other life commitments.

In September 2017, the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan signed a shared services agreement with the Alzheimer Society of Ontario to deliver U-First! in Saskatchewan.

Three U-First! sessions were offered in 2017/18 to a total of 45 people.

“I thoroughly enjoyed the facilitated session. It was very engaging and relevant to the work we do in health. The information is easy to understand and apply in everyday work. Staff who attended this session are excited to take their new learnings back to their workplace and begin interacting with their residents in a way that will better meet their needs.”

Awareness

Awareness is fundamental to advancing our mission at the Alzheimer Society. We know that very few people know the warning signs of dementia; that too many people have misconceptions about the disease; and often those who do receive a diagnosis are unaware of where to turn to for help.

In addition, it's increasingly important for people to be aware of lifestyle changes they can undertake that may reduce the risk of developing dementia.

Our awareness work is focused on getting people to know the warning signs; to better understand the importance of being dementia friendly; and making people aware of the programs and services of the Alzheimer Society that can make a real difference for those affected by dementia.

Let me help you understand

In January 2017 the Alzheimer Society of Canada in partnership with the provincial organizations launched the Let me help you understand campaign.

The campaign featured ambassadors like Naomi, Mario and Roger who stepped forward and led a national conversation that challenged prejudices, addressed the issue of stigma and better informed Canadians about dementia.

Throughout 2017 and beyond we have been using the theme of the national campaign Let me help you understand to increase the awareness and understanding of people in Saskatchewan about dementia and how to become dementia friendly.

Strategic Pillar

Residents of Saskatchewan participate in prevention strategies, seek an early diagnosis and turn to the Alzheimer Society as the leading agency for information about dementia.

Dementia Friendly Saskatchewan

In 2016, the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan was fortunate to receive three years of funding under the Government of Canada's New Horizons for Seniors program to launch a series of dementia friendly initiatives aimed at reducing isolation of older adults and increasing the understanding of dementia and our work.

That funding led to the creation of our warning signs campaign, our Dementia Friends program, allowed us to promote our Dementia Helpline and to launch our Dementia Friendly Communities initiative. Each of these initiatives is helping to increase awareness about dementia and the programs and services of the Alzheimer Society while reducing the isolation of those most affected by the disease.

Our Dementia Friends program continues to build with a total 812 Friends registered. Nearly 60 per cent of our Friends are new to the Society. Dementia Friends make a commitment to better understand dementia and how to be dementia friendly.

Our warning signs campaign, the ABC’s of Dementia, is based on categorizing the ten warning signs of dementia into a simpler matrix of making people aware of changes in a person’s abilities, behaviours and communication as possible signs of dementia.

The campaign is anchored by the ABCDementia.ca site. We maintain an ongoing advertising effort on Facebook and Instagram as well as public presentations to inform people about the ABC’s of dementia.

Last year 40 presentations on the warning signs were held in 14 different Saskatchewan communities with a total of 945 people attending.

Awareness efforts to promote our Dementia Helpline demonstrated success with the number of calls doubling this past fiscal year.

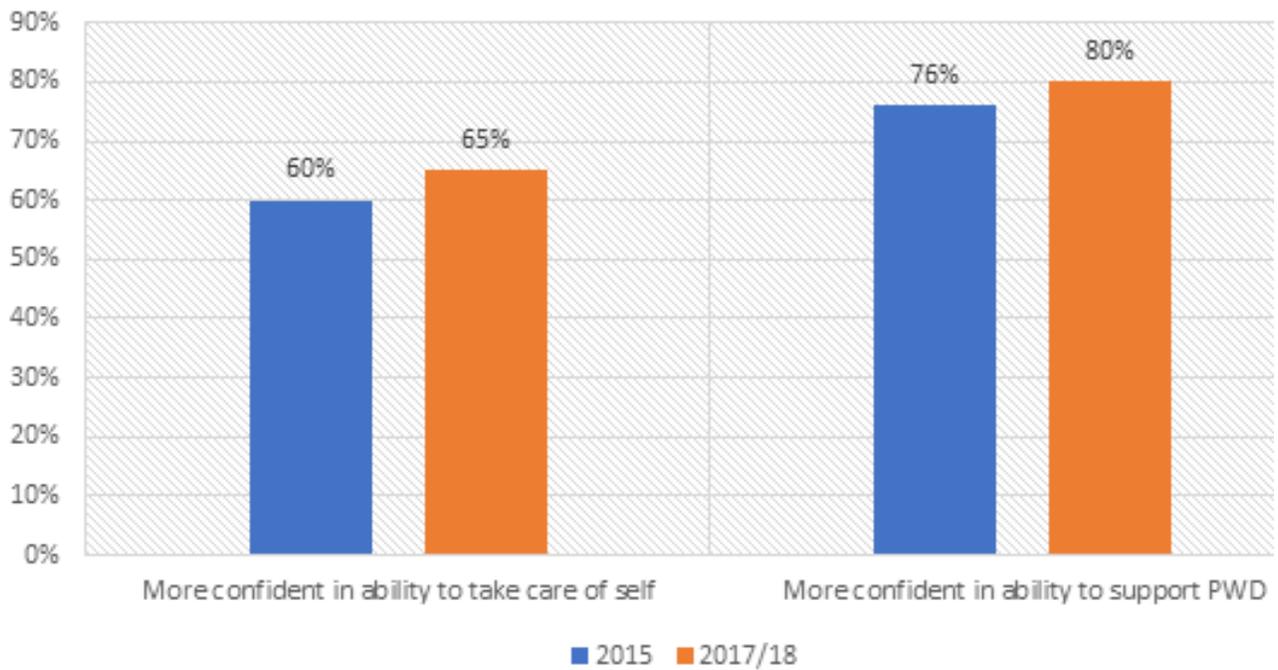

Last year we hosted 16 different Facebook Live events as part of the efforts to increase awareness that resulted in over 148,000 views.

Use of social media helped increase the attendance at our two most significant province-wide educational events - an Understanding Dementia held in January and Heads Up for Healthier Brains in March.

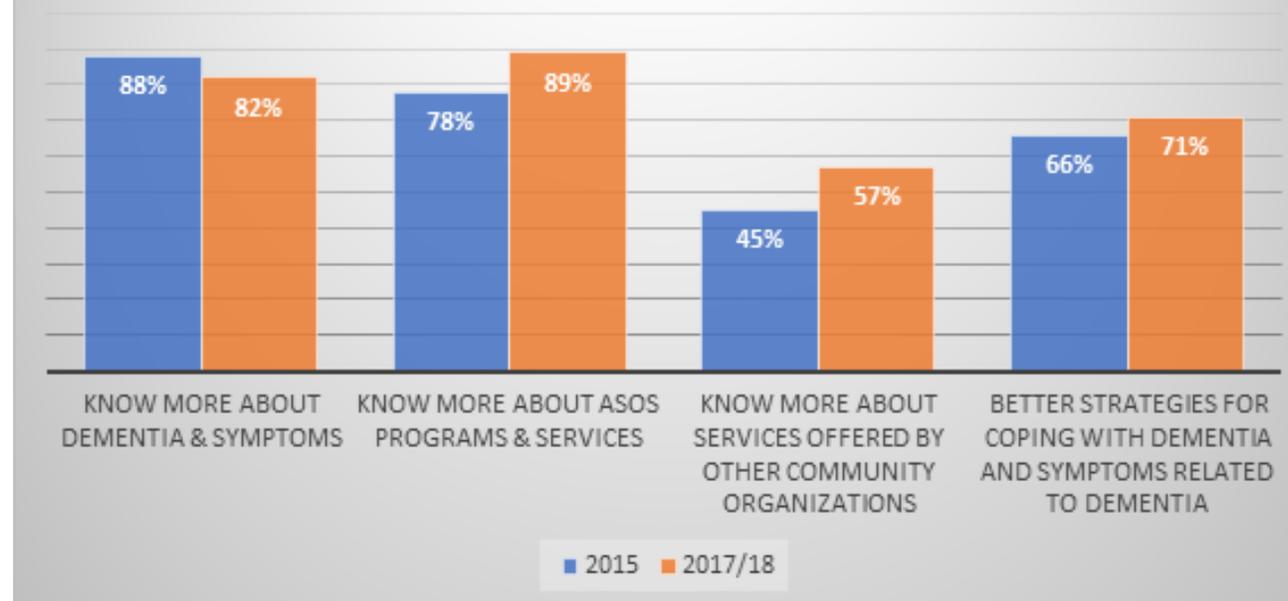

The January event with Dr. Marla Davidson had a record number of attendees tuning in across the province via Telehealth with 373 attendees in 37 different communities. The March event was led by Dr. Rebecca Genoe and was attended by 182 attendees in 20 different communities.

Our social media promotes research efforts and programming initiatives like our Minds in Motion.

Research

Research provides hope for people living with dementia. Supporting research is a priority for the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan. Every year we fund research into causes, cures and improving the lives of people affected by dementia. Our commitment to research is part of our vision of “a world without Alzheimer’s disease and related disorders.”

Alzheimer Society Research Program

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan is a proud contributor to the Alzheimer Society Research Program (ASRP) – a collaborative initiative funded by Alzheimer Societies across Canada, other partner organizations and generous donors.

This year the ASRP celebrates 30 years of funding Canadian researchers in the field of Alzheimer’s disease and other dementias with support for research totaling over $53 million in grants and awards.

The focus of the ASRP is to find better ways to prevent, diagnose and treat dementia and to improve the quality of life of those affected by it. The ASRP funds research that is focused on biomedical research and quality of life research.

In 2017-2018 the ASRP funded 28 grants and awards. Two researchers from Saskatchewan received grants this year:

Juanita Bacsu’s research will use a solution - based model to embrace rural seniors’ expertise and local knowledge to develop community based actions to reduce stigma.

Natasha Gallant is developing an automated computer vision system to detect and monitor pain in seniors living in long-term care facilities, and the psychosocial factors that influence caregivers to use and implement these technologies.

Strategic Pillar

The Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan is committed to funding research that is focused on finding a cause and a cure and improving the quality of life for people currently living with dementia.

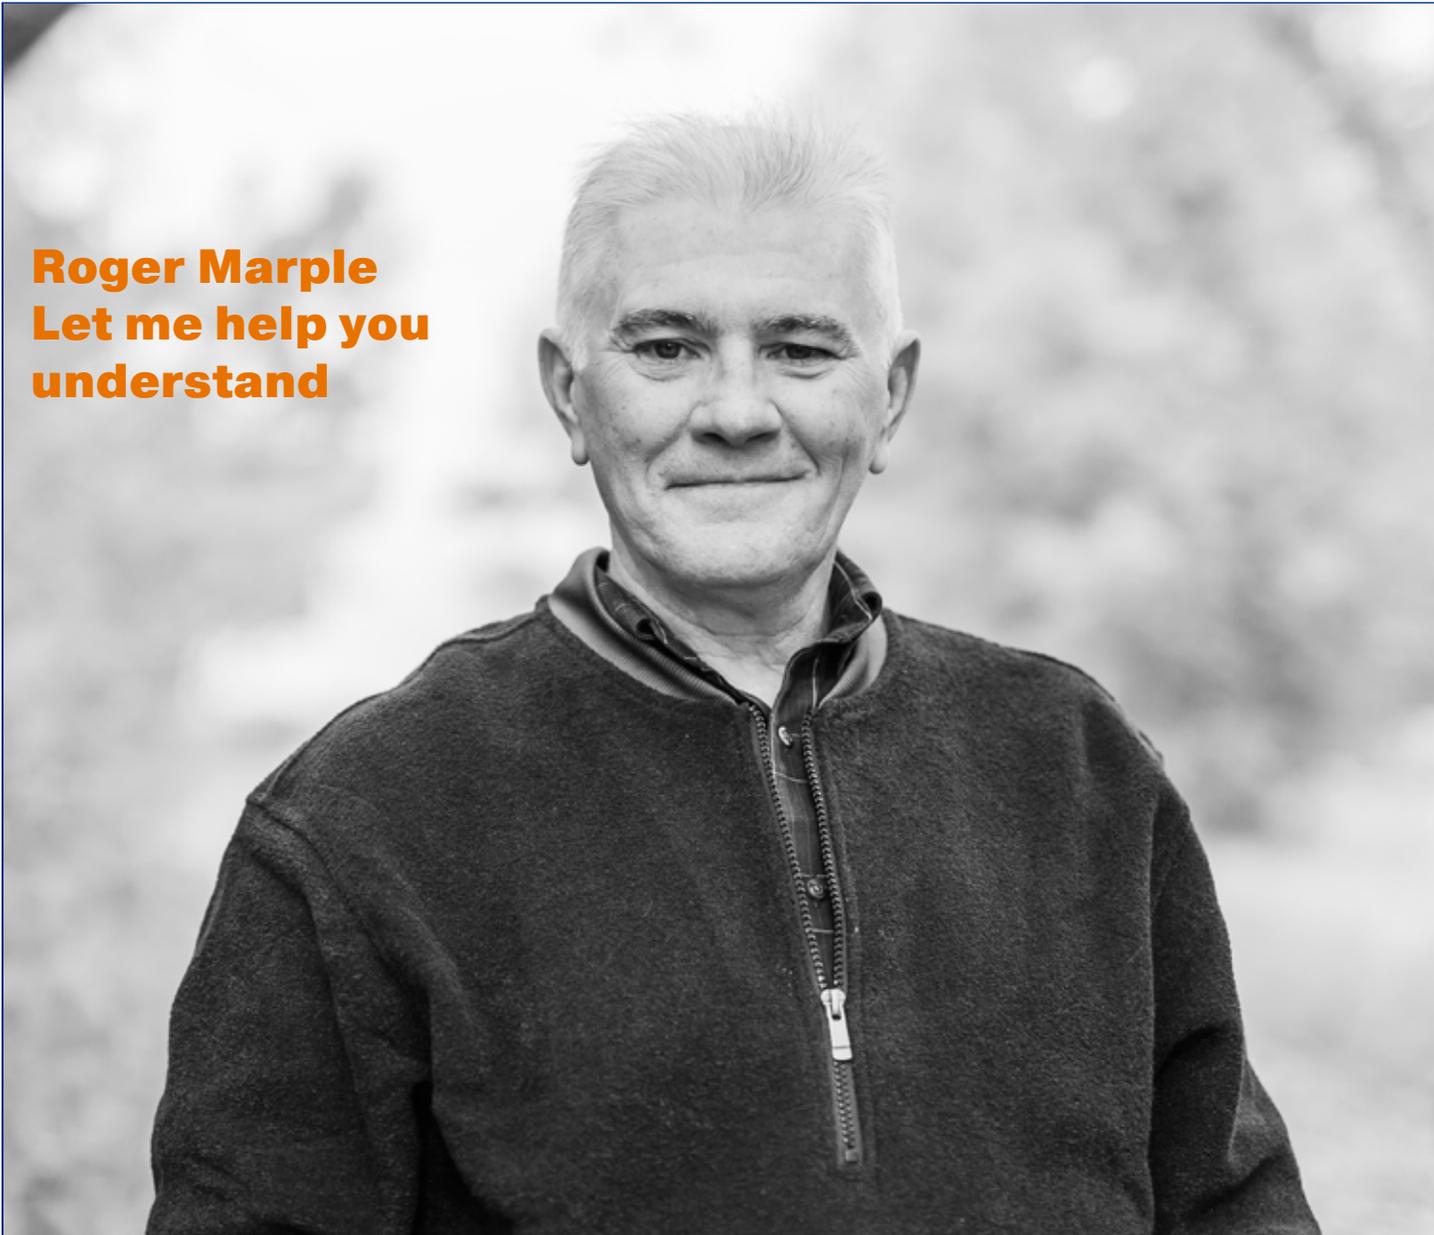

Alzheimer Society Graduate Student Scholarship

Erin Browne, PhD student in Clinical Psychology at the University of Regina, received our 2017 Scholarship. Erin is currently investigating factors contributing to the misidentification and undertreatment of pain in older adults with dementia.

Outcomes of this study will be used to improve behavioural methods of pain assessment in long-term care facilities, and to assist in development of an automated computer vision system for identifying pain in nonverbal older adults.

“This scholarship will help me to complete this research, to facilitate collaborative partnerships with other researchers, and to disseminate the results of our research at national research conferences.”

Saskatchewan Research Chair in Alzheimer's Disease and Related Dementia

Understanding that partnerships are key to finding a cause and a cure for dementia the ASOS partnered with the Saskatchewan Health Research Foundation (SHRF) to fund a Saskatchewan Research Chair. Our initial agreement was from 2010 to 2015. We renewed the Research Chair in 2016 and to date we have funded $1.2 million to support biomedical research in Saskatchewan.

Dr. Darrell Mousseau is the Saskatchewan Research Chair (SRC) in Alzheimer disease and related dementia. Darrell's laboratory is part of the Health Science Complex at the University of Saskatchewan.

Darrell and his research team are using the Saskatchewan Research Chair to explore how molecules in the brain that are normally associated with depression can also facilitate developing Alzheimer's Disease (AD) in later life. One of the best-known changes in the AD brain is the accumulation of a small protein called β amyloid ($A\beta$).

Darrell's group and collaborators from the University of Regina and Memorial University of Newfoundland are trying to understand why some of the shorter $A\beta$ s appear to protect the brain against the longer $A\beta$ s and how depression might disrupt this protective mechanism.

The Saskatchewan Research Chair team is also conducting studies on depression-related behaviours in mouse models with AD to understand the role of clinical depression in increasing the risk of developing AD. Dr. Mousseau's research team has published two papers that are providing strong evidence that depression-related proteins are altered in AD and, perhaps more importantly, that AD appears to be the end-point of two different disease processes in the male and female brain.

“There is a great need for knowledge, information, and awareness to support quality of life for people living with dementia as well as their caregivers in rural communities and beyond.”

Juanita Bacsu Dementia Researcher

Finally, Darrell's group is looking at levels of the Tau protein in the AD brain. When the function of the Tau protein is disrupted, it causes the cell to lose shape and triggers a break-down in the cell's ability to communicate with other cells.

The work of Dr. Mousseau and his research team shows how depression-related molecules can alter $A\beta$ function as well as Tau stability, which represents two of the strongest markers for AD. This research provides valuable insight into how modifying these disruptive events at early stages of the disease could slow down the disease process.

Dr. Darrell Mousseau

“The generous support of the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan and its funding partners gives my research group the opportunity to take the time to properly assess the literature and to pose the right questions. It is now my group’s responsibility to give you the correct answer, an answer that will serve those in need of better disease management options.”

Dr. Darrell Mousseau

“I greatly appreciate the periodic phone calls and learning workshops offered by the Alzheimer Society. The staff are compassionate, courteous, helpful, and supportive.”

Advocacy

A person living with dementia has value, feelings and emotions. Every individual is unique. Dementia is a challenge for the person with it, as well as for their family and caregivers.

In addition, dementia is having a growing impact on the communities in which we live as the number of those affected continues to grow.

Our advocacy efforts recognize and advance the interests of the individuals experiencing the disease and those around who are most affected.

We believe in the collective need for our communities to become dementia friendly and for all levels of government to make meaningful and substantive investments in support of people with dementia, their caregivers and into research.

In short, our advocacy is about advancing our mission and making sure that those most affected are heard in their own voice.

Strategic Pillar

Dementia is recognized and supported as a health care priority in Saskatchewan.

Leadership Group for People with Dementia

“Nothing about us, without us.” This message from people with dementia was the driving force to establish our position statement on meaningful engagement of persons with dementia and our Leadership Group for People with Dementia.

People with dementia have the right to be involved in the Alzheimer Society as we represent their interests. Our Leadership Group provides input on our strategic plan, participates on our Dementia Friendly Communities Advisory Committee as well as co-presenting with our staff at presentations.

Our Minds in Motion was expanded to new locations and leveraged volunteers to enhance the experience of participants.

Members of the Group have been our guest speaker at the Night to Remember Gala and shared their stories and messages as part of our awareness campaign, Let me help you understand.

The Group met twice in fiscal 2017-2018. Key activities included approving the Terms of Reference, reviewing the Alzheimer Society Strategic Plan and discussing ways to engage the voice of people with dementia in the work of the Society.

Ida Ryhorchuk is a member of the Group and noted that; “I am involved with the Leadership Group for People with Dementia because I think it is important to make a difference for people with dementia, by increasing awareness, and building dementia friendly communities.”

“It is important to make businesses aware of the needs of persons with dementia by making the business dementia friendly through education of both the business and employer. I want to share my voice and my story so that together we can make things better for anyone living with dementia.”

The Leadership Group for People with Dementia is a catalyst to amplify the voices of people with lived experience to help reduce stigma, demonstrate that people with dementia are living well and still have capacity to contribute to society in a very meaningful way.

Government Relations

Our relationships with the Government of Saskatchewan is a key asset for the Alzheimer Society. The Government of Saskatchewan is a significant funder of our First Link Program and we value the constructive relationship we have with the Ministry of Health.

During the last fiscal year, we met twice with Linda Restau, Director, and Ramona Furkert, Seniors Consultant, from the Continuing Care and Rehabilitation Branch to report on the implementation plan for First Link and to keep them up to date on Alzheimer Society initiatives that support people living with dementia in Saskatchewan as well as other key initiatives of the Alzheimer Society including, Minds in Motion, UFirst!, and Dementia Friendly Communities.

In addition, our CEO Joanne Bracken met with the Honourable Jim Reiter, Minister of Health, and the Honourable Greg Ottenbreit, Minister of Rural and Remote Health, to discuss the need for a Dementia Strategy for Saskatchewan and other shared concerns.

Engaging Physicians

We continue to engage with the Saskatchewan Medical Association (SMA) to increase awareness about the importance of a diagnosis, referral to First Link and the programs and services of the Alzheimer Society. CEO Joanne Bracken, and Director of Programs and Operations Joanne Michael, met with SMA communications staff to discuss partnership opportunities.

Revenue Development

Giving is about making a difference. Because of our donors, we were able to do just that.

Our donors choose to give in a number of different ways; through an amazing evening at our Gala, leaving a planned gift in their will, walking in the Investor's Group Walk for Alzheimer's, hosting a third-party event, writing a cheque or donating online.

No matter your chosen way, thank you so much for your support!

Fall Gala - A Night to Remember

Last fall we hosted a successful and elegant gala event with over 300 guests in attendance. An evening of entertainment, food, and fun was made special by many sponsors, donations and volunteers brought together by the desire to make Saskatchewan a leader in support of people with dementia and their families. Our guest speaker, Ida Rychorchuk, asked guests to reach out to people affected by the disease. "Talk to us, not about us. Ask us how we are doing and listen to understand."

Investor's Group Walk for Alzheimer's

2017 was an amazing year for the Investors Group Walk for Alzheimer's in Saskatchewan raising $185,000 provincially! The Investors Group Walk for Alzheimer's is a province-wide event to raise awareness and funds to support people and families living with Alzheimer's disease

We know that 3 out of every 4 dollars that supports our work comes from donors. Those donors are making an impact on the work that the Alzheimer Society is able to provide and the way that we can support people with dementia to live well with the disease and to be engaged in their communities and be a valued member of society.

Joanne Bracken, CEO

and related dementias. The Walk is currently celebrated in 6 Saskatchewan communities and continues to expand. This inspiring event calls on participants of all ages and abilities to help support people living with dementia, including family, friends, coworkers, social groups, faith groups, and more. Together we display a combined strength and dedication in the fight against this disease.

Planned Giving

More people have realized the benefit of leaving a gift in their will to the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan. An increasing amount of donations received every year are through generous individuals leaving donations to the Alzheimer Society in this manner.

“We walk in unity with those who have lived with dementia, those who currently live with dementia, and their many loved ones. We walk in unity because we are a community, a province, a nation that believes in supporting our most vulnerable. And we will continue to walk in unity until we have found a cure.”

Why I Walk - Allison Cammer

Thank you to those individuals who have already considered the Alzheimer Society of Saskatchewan in their estate plans. If you are interested in learning more, please request a free estate planning guide on our website or by calling our provincial office.

Volunteers

This past year was a year to celebrate, as we saw many individuals donating their time to our cause through a number of different opportunities. We could not do what we do without these dedicated and generous individuals. Thank you!

Anything for Alzheimer`s

This past year was another year where Saskatchewan`s creativity shone through! We were excited to accept donations from individuals and groups raising money for us through a variety of different third party events, including a 'Day of Bridge', Christmas concerts, donation of book proceeds, popcorn theatres, wine and cheese nights, silent auctions, and many more!

Grants

Grants continue to make up a meaningful portion of funding received yearly. We are fortunate to work with many local and provincial foundations who support our organization and the work we do.
